Session 29: Supervision Best Practices with Dr. Lisa Britton, BCBA-D

Dear fellow Behavior Analyst,

In Session 29 of The Behavioral Observations Podcast, I interview Dr. Lisa Britton, from Britton Behavioral Consulting. Lisa specializes in providing high quality Independent Fieldwork Supervision, especially in remote contexts. We spend the better part of the hour discussing a wide variety of supervision issues, and she provides many tips on making the most out of any supervision experience, both from the supervisor and supervisee perspectives.

There is 1 Type 2 Continuing Education credit earned for participating in this event. This counts as a Supervision Continuing Education Credit.

Objectives of this training:

1. The learner will be able to describe what Dr. Britton feels are prerequisites for offering supervision as a service.
2. The learner will be able to describe one tip for ensuring supervisor competency during group supervision meetings.
3. The learner will be able to identify a strategy for participating in multiple-supervisor arrangements.
